Dr. Christina N. Fick, DAOM, MSTCM, MS.Ac., L.Ac., Dipl. Ac. (NCCAOM)

Christina has earned two Master's degrees in Chinese Medicine, and Acupuncture, from the Colorado School of Traditional Chinese Medicine in Denver, Colorado. One degree is in Chinese Acupuncture (2011), and the other is in Traditional Chinese Medicine (2012) which includes nutrition, exercise, herbology, and other advanced techniques. In 2015 Christina graduated with a Doctoral degree in Acupuncture and Oriental Medicine from Oregon College of Oriental Medicine in Portland, Oregon. This two-year, accredited degree focuses on Western medicine, integrations, diagnostics, and advanced skills such as lab/skan readings, and advanced therapeutic techniques. Only 1% of all American Acupuncturists hold this degree. Christina is certified in Colorado to practice Injection Therapy (BioPuncture) through DORA and the FDA-approved list of injectables. Christina has interned in Nanjing, China in orthopedics, in Brooklyn, New York in Labor and Delivery, and in Urubamba, Peru in indigenous medicine. Prior to being a licensed acupuncturist, Christina interned for two years at a well-established acupuncture clinic in Denver, Colorado. She was an acupuncture assistant, front desk manager, and acupuncture intern. This clinic specializes in oncology, autoimmune conditions, and difficult cases. Christina is licensed both nationally through NCCAOM #150355 and through the state of Colorado (DORA) #1727. She has passed all four board exams as well as continuing education credits. None of her licenses or certifications have ever been revoked. She has never been under litigation and never faced a felony or misdemeanor.
